

Art and Life, Life and Art
(For M)

There are times when art imitates life
And times where life imitates art
I've never really been one to say
But something can happen that makes it feel that way.

It can be about the blues
It can be about life
It can be about what we lose
It can be about strife

It can be about a woman
Who makes you feel whole
It can be about all the baggage or, it can be about what touches your soul

We can fear what we have
We can fear what we might lose
We can fear all the wrong things
We can fear what we choose.

No matter the roads we travel
No matter the moments in time
We have today to remember
And today can be the sublime.

There are times when art imitates life
And times where life imitates art
I've never really been one to say
But something can happen that makes it feel that way.

J. Koetzner